Italian Ottomans War: Struggle for Libya, 1911–12

This lesser known conflict was an Italian military victory, both on land and, finally, at sea. Rome found itself fighting a protracted counterinsurgency in North Africa to secure its gains. By Joseph Miranda

The Battle of Pydna

Philip V saw his chance to dominate Macedonia while Rome was under attack by Hannibal. However, once Rome defeated Carthage, it turned its attention to Macedonia. At Pydna, Roman maniples demonstrated their flexibility over the cumbersome phalanx formation and ended the Macedonian kingdom. By Sean Hußmann

Stalin’s Command Decisions

There are many parallels between Stalin and Hitler: supreme military command was assumed, not earned, costly underestimation of the enemy, even costlier overestimation of his own force’s capability. The chief difference would occur later in the war: Stalin began listening to his advisors, while Hitler continued to ignore his. By John B. Drury

Sandino’s War in Nicaragua, 1927–34

Through the 1927 Agreement of Tipitapa, Liberal general Sandino continued to fight. Thus began a six year struggle in which the US military eventually lost but learned the art of jungle warfare that supported their success in the upcoming Pacific War. By Terence Co

Features

Italian-Ottoman War: Struggle for Libya, 1911–12

This lesser known conflict was an Italian military victory, both on land and, finally, at sea. Rome found itself fighting a protracted counterinsurgency in North Africa to secure its gains. By Joseph Miranda

The Battle of Pydna

Philip V saw his chance to dominate Macedonia while Rome was under attack by Hannibal. However, once Rome defeated Carthage, it turned its attention to Macedonia. At Pydna, Roman maniples demonstrated their flexibility over the cumbersome phalanx formation and ended the Macedonian kingdom. By Sean Hußmann

Stalin’s Command Decisions

There are many parallels between Stalin and Hitler: supreme military command was assumed, not earned, costly underestimation of the enemy, even costlier overestimation of his own force’s capability. The chief difference would occur later in the war: Stalin began listening to his advisors, while Hitler continued to ignore his. By John B. Drury

Sandino’s War in Nicaragua, 1927–34

Through the 1927 Agreement of Tipitapa, Liberal general Sandino continued to fight. Thus began a six year struggle in which the US military eventually lost but learned the art of jungle warfare that supported their success in the upcoming Pacific War. By Terence Co

Departments

On Design

By Joseph Miranda

Work in Progress

Suwaki Gap

Joffre in Command

By Dave Schroeder

Did You Know?

For Your Information

• Napoleon and the Military Revolution
  By Patrick S. Baker

• The Tobruk Run
  By Jonathan Lupton

• Dreadnoughts
  By Mark Day

• The Fall of Acre in 1281
  By Brian Albrecht

Media Reviews

The Long Tradition

Features

Italian-Ottoman War: Struggle for Libya, 1911–12

This lesser known conflict was an Italian military victory, both on land and, finally, at sea. Rome found itself fighting a protracted counterinsurgency in North Africa to secure its gains. By Joseph Miranda

The Battle of Pydna

Philip V saw his chance to dominate Macedonia while Rome was under attack by Hannibal. However, once Rome defeated Carthage, it turned its attention to Macedonia. At Pydna, Roman maniples demonstrated their flexibility over the cumbersome phalanx formation and ended the Macedonian kingdom. By Sean Hußmann

Stalin’s Command Decisions

There are many parallels between Stalin and Hitler: supreme military command was assumed, not earned, costly underestimation of the enemy, even costlier overestimation of his own force’s capability. The chief difference would occur later in the war: Stalin began listening to his advisors, while Hitler continued to ignore his. By John B. Drury

Sandino’s War in Nicaragua, 1927–34

Through the 1927 Agreement of Tipitapa, Liberal general Sandino continued to fight. Thus began a six year struggle in which the US military eventually lost but learned the art of jungle warfare that supported their success in the upcoming Pacific War. By Terence Co

Departments

On Design

By Joseph Miranda

Work in Progress

Suwaki Gap

Joffre in Command

By Dave Schroeder

Did You Know?

For Your Information

• Napoleon and the Military Revolution
  By Patrick S. Baker

• The Tobruk Run
  By Jonathan Lupton

• Dreadnoughts
  By Mark Day

• The Fall of Acre in 1281
  By Brian Albrecht

Media Reviews

The Long Tradition

READER SUBMISSIONS

We welcome interesting and concise stories about virtually any aspect of military history. We also welcome Media Reviews of any type for Strategy & Tactics, World at War and Modern War magazines. We value critical analysis over summaries alone. Maximum word count is 500. Contact the editor directly.

Please use the Editorial contact form on our corporate site:
www.strategyandtacticspress.com/wpsite/contact

Strategy & Tactics® (USPS 10744) is published bi-monthly by Decision Games, 2804 Mosasco St. Bakersfield CA 93312. Periodical Class postage paid at Bakersfield, CA and additional mailing offices.

Strategy & Tactics® is a registered trademark for Decision Games’ military history magazine. Strategy & Tactics (©2020) reserves all rights on the contents of this publication. Nothing may be reproduced from it in whole or in part without prior permission from the publisher. All rights reserved. All correspondence should be sent to Decision Games, P.O. Box 21598, Bakersfield CA 93390.