The Destruction of Groupement Mobile 100

The annihilation of an elite French motorized combat unit by the Viet Minh during the First Indochina War proved to be a terrible harbinger of what the United States might encounter in its war in Vietnam 10 years later.

Features

6 On to Baghdad: Mesopotamia & Persia, 1914–18

Their defeats in the Libyan and Balkan Wars of 1911–13 led the Turks to look east. Given the strength of the European powers in the west, it seemed their only route to reestablishing regional dominance.

34 The Fall of the Portuguese Empire in India

The Portuguese created the first global empire in history, beginning with their seizure of Ceuta on the African side of the Straits of Gibraltar in 1415. At its peak, their empire stretched from Brazil through Central Africa, onto the Indian subcontinent at Goa, and the South Pacific and East Asia at Macao. This is how the portion of it on the Indian subcontinent came to its end.

42 Phormio: Ancient Greece’s Greatest Admiral

Though not as well known as several other Athenian war leaders with whom he was a compatriot, Phormio must be ranked among the greatest admirals of the Classical Era. This article explains why that is true.

On the Cover

Only a handful of tanks took part in the Mid-East campaigns of World War I. As they have ever since their debut, they always get media attention. The cover shows a British tank in Mesopotamia on 1 July, 1918.
